BREAKING ICE BONDS.

Ferry Traffic Resumed on Nearly Schedule Time

But No Thaw in Sight Before Next Week.

More Than Twenty Inches of Snow on the Ground.

Six inches more of beautiful snow makes Manhattan's Winter blanket more than wenty inches thick, where ceaseless tramping and the turmoil of traffic had not packed it and pressed it and ground it down. Nearly twenty-five inches of snow have fallen on New York in fleecy flakes since Dec. 12, and not since Christmas has there been an hour of thawing weather.

Breaking the Ice fileckade.

The ice blockade in the rivers and harbor is very much broken to-day and traffic was resumed with about the accustomed regularity this morning.

There was some little delay of the earlier ferry-boats, owing to the formation of new icy ligaments between the floating cakes, but by 6 octook all the ferries were running their boats on nearly schedule time.

The ferry-boats were obliged to lay out and follow new routes from shore to shore, detouring around the floating masses of ice.

The ice flow was governed more or less by the tides, and there were plainly marked paths in which there was practically no ice at all.

The boats to Thirty-ninth street, South Brookiya, had some difficulty at first about verting into their Brookiya sin, but that was Ice-Bound in Sound and Lower Hay.

Ice continues to come down the North River. It moves down the East River on the ebb tide and fills the lower bay. The solid field that hugs the banks of the upper bay on either side had extended to Red diook on the east and kobbins Reef on the west this morning, and is still increasing in size by the accretion of the downflow from the river.

The Sound is full of ice as far as one can see from City island. Steamers report no difficulty in passing through, however, but there are scores of saling vessels, tows and floats ice-bound in the Sound.

From Sandy Hook a great deal of ice is reported in the lower bay. The ship Glooscap, which arrived at the bar Wednesday, has been mable to get up the bay. The tug Talisman made an effort to bring her up yesterday, but falled, and both tug and ship drifted with the ice below the Narrows.

Caught in an Ice Floc.

Caught in an Ice Floe.

A three-masted loaded coal barge, which had been lying off Tompkinsville, was caught in an ice floe this morning and dragged her anchors until she went against the dock of the Merritt Coast Wrecking Company, off stapleton. Another two-masted barge drilted against an iron bar, and it is believed sustained considerable damage.

Fourteen ishing smacks and sloops are ice-bound in Bechtel's basin at Stapleton. This morning the crews were able to walk from one vessel to the other on the ice, which was the only way they could get ashore.

At the boarding station at Quarantine the Health Officers' tug George C. Preston was compelled to get alongside of the incoming vessels outside of the Narrows owing to the heavy ice in the lower bay, and especially off the boarding station.

The schooner Maggie Dalling, which arrived yesterday from Clentuegos, is ashore high up on the beach just below Fort Wadsworth, S. I. A towboat is alongside of her, and will attempt so haul her off on the rising tide. She lies in an easy position.

Telegraph Wires All Right.

Supt. Humstone, of the Western Union Telegraph Company, reported joyously that not a wire was down because of the storm.

The street car companies were almost in despair when they found their tracks buried again this morning. Scrapers and sweepers were again sent out and teams were doubled upon the cars during the forenoon.

The sun came out before noon and in places where it shone directly upon the snow there was a sign of melting, but Forecaster Dunn shook his head and said grimly:

"No thaw before next week. There is zero weather in the West and down nearly to St. Louis. There is freezing weather as far South as Jacksonville. Fig., and Savannah. It will be colder to-night, and a little—a very little—warmer to-morrow. It will take three or four days to warm up to a thawing point." Prophet Dunn curries favor with the juvenile Knickerbocker by promising good skating for ten days, and the Park Department shows that it "was a boy once itself" by ordering the aweepers and shovellers out on the Central Park lakes and the smaller ponds to-day to clear away the snow and make room for the skaters.

Brennan's Department Paralyzed.

"The Department, in so far as the scows and dumps are concerned, is actually paralyzed," said street-cleaning Commissioner Brennan this morning. "No dumpers went to sea yeaterday, and, of course, no deck scows. Our condition is worse than ever.

"At Gravesend Bay there are two laden deek scows, and at Bay Hidge two laden dempers, which await a seasonable opportunity for unloading. We have to-day, between dumps and unloading places, including dumpers and deck scows, fitty-four laden barges unable to move from the dumps.

"We were completely lee-bound yesterday and unable to move anything. Stanton. Seventleth, Eighleth, One Hundred and Tenth and Forty-sixth streets are covered this morning, but Canal, Tweirth and Nineteenth streets will be loaded by 9 o'clock and we will be blocked up all day in the North River.
